

Red Bank, Tennessee Public Parks and Green Spaces

James W. "Skipper" Fairbanks Recreational Complex (11.56 acres)

This cluster of baseball fields on the west side of the new Red Bank Middle School, beyond the end of Tom Weathers Drive, is a fragmented remnant of the former Morrison Springs Park that was split and partially converted by construction of the school.

The athletics complex features 1 large field, 3 medium fields and 1 small field, plus a sports facility building (primarily for boxing), 3 pitching/batting cages and 2 concession stands.

The land is owned by the City of Red Bank. While the welcome sign calls it a Red Bank Community Park, other signage declares the fields and facilities to be the “Property of the Red Bank Dixie Youth,” and directs anyone else wishing to use the facilities to call for information.
